Sabina Murray is a professor of English and teaches in the MFA/ Creative Writing Program at the University of Massachusetts Amherst.

Murray is the author of three novels and two short story collections, including the PEN/Faulkner Award winning The Caprices and the contemporary gothic A Carnivore’s Inquiry. Her work is included in The Norton Anthology. She wrote the script for Beautiful Country, a Golden Bear contender, for which she was nominated for an Independent Spirit Award. Her latest book, Tales of the New World, was recently published by Grove/Black Cat.

Murray completed her Master of Arts as a Michener Fellow at the University of Texas at Austin. She has been a Guggenheim Fellow and Bunting Fellow. She has earned grants from the Massachusetts Cultural Council and awards from UMass Amherst and the University of Pittsburgh. Currently, she holds a fellowship from the National Endowment for the Arts.

A look at the power of engaging history in one’s fiction—of inviting the real into the imagined.